In today's game there is one dealer, bets are typically placed against the house, and the house also fills in the banker role.

From Italy, baccarat travelled to France, where it was known as Chemin de Fer, or "Chemmy".

Baccarat also caught on in England, where Ian Fleming learned how to play the game before creating the world's most famous baccarat player: James Bond.

As more time passed, baccarat cropped up in South America and in the Caribbean, where under the name of Punto Banco, it adapted to the local culture.

The main changes included the players playing against the house only, and the banker role being reserved solely for the casino.

This kind of baccarat is what we now know as "American Baccarat".

In the late 1950s, Tommy Renzoni shipped the game over to the Sands casino in Las Vegas, and the rest, as we say, is history.

Baccarat may have not caught on with the public the same way games like real money roulette and blackjack have, but it still enjoys an air of exclusivity and prestige with many casino goers.

That total was put up to 262 in December.

The former Newcastle midfielder was charged by the FA in December 2016 after it was revealed that he placed 1260 bets over a period of 10 years, between 2006 and 2016.

It was alleged that Barton broke FA's regulations by betting on "football matches and competitions".

However, Sturridge's career was plagued by injuries and in 2019, he was found guilty of breaching betting rules.

This led to a rather unsavoury end to Shaw's time with Sutton as he resigned from the club and was later punished by the FA for intentionally influencing a football betting market. Andros Townsend
