ing Fake Reviews

It's a constant struggle and people are failing at filtering those suspicious s reviews out of their apps, as recently found by an analysis conducted by Which

It made use of a special model that classified all sorts of suspicious review be havior on those apps and they found nearly 25% of the top 100 applications on Go ogle Play have questionable reviews. As far as the App Store is concerned, the f igure here was said to be 17%.

With five stars, so many apps were making use of paid reviews and these had a mu ch bigger proportion linked to five-star reviews. For instance, dating apps had massively positive reviews that comprised nearly 60%.

Experts from this study also made people aware of how they can note down suspici ous activity in the form of review manipulation with ease. They're usually c omprised of bulk uploads. Yes, so many clusters of highly rated reviews arise ov er a span of just four to five days.

Then you'll notice a break, right before another huge spike comes into play.

Again, these were apps that were not too well known. They contrasted so much di fferent when compared to the apps with fake reviews.
