Select an online betting service or bookmaker which offers Lunchtime odds.

Choose how many numbers you want to try and match, between one and five.

Instead, they use a "pure odds" prize structure, where the amount you bet and the odds of winning directly affect the prize you win.

For example, if you wagered R10 on matching two numbers in a seven-number draw, you would win R450, but in a six-number draw, the same bet would win you R660.

The odds in each prize division are decided by the betting organisation, meaning they may be longer or shorter than those above.
