The first type of tax scam involves filing Form 7202, Credits for Sick Leave and Family Leave for Certain Self-Employed Individuals. Scammers advise people to claim this credit for the income they earned as regular employees - rather than the intended self-employed taxpayers. These pandemic-specific credits are no longer available for use on 2022 tax returns, anyway. Trying to claim expired COVID emergency credits for the self-employed will certainly get your return flagged.

How to fix a false tax return

If you or anyone you know has participated in this W-2 scheme, the IRS recommends filing an amended tax return. You could also consider consulting a tax professional to get your ducks fully in a row.

Here's what to know about amended returns:
