I am buying and selling online, but I do not have a product. I sell about USD 3K a month. No, I am not selling a consultancy or service either. I am selling used textbooks - but I do not have to keep books with me or procure them like any other seller has to, or wait for a buyer to purchase from me. My model is as easy as 1-2-3 and it has been working great.

My process is simple:

Like any other business, you need to be careful. You need to understand that a website will only pay you if you send them a good book. No one is going to pay you what they quoted if you send them a book with any of the following flaws:

1. Different edition (international or an older edition)
3. Poor condition (some sellers have torn books or loose leaf books)

Amazon sellers are buying fake reviews for just R 1,200 each: Report

Companies selling 'fake reviews' have an army of testers, who buy the products and post ratings on Amazon.

One review firm, AMZTigers of Germany boasts of deploying 3,000 testers in the UK alone.

Despite a crackdown by Amazon, sellers on the platform are continuing to purchase fake reviews for around 15 euro each (about 1,200), according to a Daily Mail
